

ROBERT S. HILTON IS DEAD AT HOME NEAR ROCKVILLE

Prominent Citizen of Montgomery County Victim of General Breakdown.

ROCKVILLE, Md., May 23.—Robert S. Hilton, aged eighty years, died yesterday afternoon at his home in Clarksburg, this county, of a general breakdown. He was taken ill Sunday. Surviving him are his wife and two children—Robert S. Hilton, president of the Farmers' Banking and Trust Company, of this place, and Mrs. Herbert Darby, of Clarksburg. He also leaves two brothers—J. Brice Hilton, of this county, and Adolphus Hilton, of Washington.

Mr. Hilton was one of the county's leading citizens, and was held in high esteem by a wide circle of friends. He was a native and life-long resident of the county. For thirty-two years, and until a few months ago, he was engaged in the mercantile business in Clarksburg. The only public office he ever held was that of State Tobacco Inspector to which he was appointed by Governor Carroll in 1876.

Accompanied by two friends, Miss Edith L. Baughman, of Ashburn, Va., and James Edward Alexander, of Middleton, Ohio, visited Rockville yesterday afternoon and were married by Rev. F. M. Richardson, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, the ceremony taking place at the parsonage. They left for Washington soon after the ceremony. In making application for the license the young man gave his age as twenty-two and that of the young woman as eighteen.

James H. Brown, a well-known farmer of the vicinity of Brighton, this county, died in a Baltimore hospital Tuesday as a result of injuries received in a runaway accident about a week before. Two horses he was driving became frightened and ran away. Brown was thrown from the buggy, his head striking a stone wall, fracturing the skull and otherwise injuring him. An operation was performed, but without avail. Brown was thirty-six years old. He is a son of the late William Brown, of this county.

Upon pleading guilty in the police court here to a charge of carrying a concealed weapon, Richard Sewell, colored, was sentenced by Judge Mace to three months in the house of correction.

In the second annual debate between teams representing the Rockville and Sandy Spring high schools, which was held in the opera house here and attended by a large number of friends of the two institutions, the Sandy Spring orators were given the verdict by a vote of two to one. The judges being the Rev. W. G. McKenney, of Elverton, Md.; E. B. Prettymann, of Washington, and J. E. Lodge, of Clarksburg. The subject was "Resolved: That no male citizen of Maryland should be allowed to vote unless he is a native-born citizen of the United States." The Rockville team, which was composed of Misses Elsie Beck and Dorothy Leeman, and Byron White, argued in the affirmative, and the Sandy Spring team, consisting of James H. Brown, Elsie Purvis, and S. B. Wetherill, upheld the negative.

In a baseball game here yesterday afternoon, Rockville High School beat Sandy Spring High School 2 to 1. Both teams played good ball, and the contest was replete with interest. The batteries were Elsie and Andy for Rockville, and John and Cur for Sandy Spring.

The annual class night exercises of the graduating class of the Rockville High School will be held in the opera house Tuesday evening, and next Sunday morning the baccalaureate service will be delivered in Christ Episcopal Church by the pastor, Rev. D. Houghton-Burke.

BANK IS VICTOR IN SUIT FOR DAMAGES

Refusal to Cash Check Due to Poor Signature, Jury Holds.

A jury in Circuit Court, No. 1, returned a verdict for the defendant in the suit of David A. Skinner, former assistant secretary of state of Porto Rico against the National Bank of Washington, because a check for $60 he cashed in Memphis, Tenn., was turned back at the bank. Skinner sued for $4,000 damages.

The testimony in the case was that the check was cashed in Memphis, and then passed through several banks before reaching the National Bank of Washington. It was contended by the bank that the signature did not resemble the one left by Skinner, and for that reason payment was refused.

By a coincidence Owen T. Beeves, a national bank examiner, was at the National Bank when the check appeared, and his attention was called to the variance in the two signatures, the one on the check, and the one left at the bank by Skinner, and for the protection of both the bank and Skinner, it was testified, payment was withheld.

Wright's Condition Grave.
DAYTON, Ohio, May 23.—An early morning bulletin from the home of Wilbur Wright, aviator, who is dangerously ill of typhoid fever, gave no change in his condition. His temperature for almost a week has remained at 101 and 104 degrees.

Waxes Sarcastic

CONGRESSMAN MARTIN DIES.

FIRE PART OF PLAN TO FREE PRISONERS, OFFICIALS BELIEVE

Guards Make Men In Cells Lie Flat While Blaze Is Extinguished.

CHICAGO, May 23.—An investigation of a fire which burned the broom factory at Bridewell and threatened the lines of hundreds of prisoners early today, has been begun by the county authorities. It has been rumored that the fire was incendiary and was part of a plot for a wholesale delivery of prisoners.

The burned factory was thirty feet from two cell houses in which 1,000 prisoners were confined. Dense volumes of smoke poured through the barred windows of the cell houses. It is the belief of the authorities that the fire may have been started in order to force a transfer of prisoners to another cell building and that in the confusion a break for liberty would be made. The prisoners were ordered by the guards to lie flat on the floor. Careful watch was kept to begin the transfer if it became actually necessary, but the fire was extinguished before the lives of the prisoners were actually endangered.

Train Wrecked.

TROY, Ohio, May 23.—A Pennsylvania passenger train, bound for St. Louis was wrecked near Bradford, this county, early today, and one person was killed and another injured. The train was derailed.

Banish Bunions, Corns, Callouses!

"BINGO" Brings Instant Relief!

Get wise—get Bingo! Stop "Ouch-ing" when people walk on your feet—don't have a corn or bunion to stand on! Isn't necessary. Make a bee-line for the drug store—this very minute—ask the man for Bingo. Take it home—put it on—say "Bingo" and your feet are free!

The Bingo way's the latest way—the safest, easiest, quickest way. Touch a drop or two to a corn—bingo!—it begins to shrink and shrivel. Entire corn loosens, comes out—foot included—without a hitch or hindrance—without aid of knife, gimlet or cuss words. Blessed relief! Now slip on your smallest shoes—so your way rejoicing.

Your druggist has Bingo—or will get it if he hasn't. Otherwise, send the price, 25c, to Denison Pharmaceutical Co., 111 N. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill., and get it direct, prepaid. Sold in bulk by Affiliated Two Star Drug Store, 304 G Street and 15th and F Streets, Christian Drug Co., cor. 7th and Mass. Ave. N. W., and 104 degrees.

Under Government Supervision.

There is No Secret

About getting rich. If you persistently save your money until you have some capital to work with it is easy to make money.

We Pay 3% Compound Interest on Savings Accounts

HOME SAVINGS BANK

7th St. and Mass. Ave. N. W.
7th and H Sts. N. E. 436 7th St. S. W.

DIES SAYS SOLONS OF MODERN TIMES ARE RULED BY "PAP"

Texas Congressman Deplores Passing of Ante-Bellum Statesmanship.

"We have all surrendered to pap, to appropriations," said Congressman Martin Dies, during a satirical speech in the House late yesterday, which constituted an arraignment of his colleagues, the "progressives" of today and, incidentally, Colonel Roosevelt.

Mr. Dies deprecated the passing of the "statesmanship of other days, of ante-bellum times," and said a number of sarcastic things about some members in Congress who call themselves progressives.

The speech of the Texan member was prompted by a plan which he said was afoot to smother a bill amending the immigration laws. He protested that ignorant persons from southeastern Europe, "who can neither read nor write their own language, and who never heard of the Constitution or the Declaration of Independence," should not become voters of this Republic.

From this he branched into a general discussion of the state of the Union compared with ante-bellum times. Mr. Dies said in part:

"That is the worst cowardice that the Congress of the nation ever indulged in. Cry 'Progress!' Cry that you are Republicans or Democrats! Progressives! and yet you let a million illiterates of Europe dump themselves upon your shores every year, to mix with you in the solution of these problems. Just last year 200,000 of the immigrants of the foreigners, took out letters that entitled them to vote. Two hundred thousand would cast the die in behalf of the States of the Union. Progressives indeed!"

"For the old Democracy of Calhoun, and of the old ante-bellum days, I have the highest regard, because it was a Democracy that stood for the Constitution, a Democracy that said that the States were integral parts of this great Union of ours. But in the breaking down of lines after the civil war, it became an effort to scramble for appropriations. We have all surrendered to pap, to appropriations."

Alfred G. Vanderbilt Expected to Return

NEWPORT, R. I., May 23.—Newport hears that Alfred G. Vanderbilt and his bride, who was Mrs. Margaret McKim, of Baltimore, will come home from London at the close of the coaching season and will exhibit at the Horse Show in New York, where a post-mortem of the National Horse Show, Mr. Vanderbilt will have plenty to occupy his time.

Oakland Farm can be made ready in a short time for the coming season. Society here is preparing to give him and his bride a hearty welcome.

RUDOLPH WILL FIX SECRET TIME LIMIT IN SOCIABILITY RUN

Details of Contest Submitted to Commissioner By Captain Jose.

By HARRY WARD.
The time in which the automobile sociability run of twenty-two and a half miles Saturday should be made will be set by Commissioner Cuno H. Rudolph. The details of the run were presented late yesterday to Mr. Rudolph by Capt. Joseph Jose, and some time today he will set the time for making the run. No one besides Commissioner Rudolph will know the time until the seal is broken Saturday by Referee William Jose after the last car has checked in at the automobile clubhouse. Commissioner Rudolph is greatly interested in the event, particularly as it will serve to educate motorists to drive sanely and within the speed limits.

Entries poured in on Captain Jose yesterday and the number is sure to pass the one hundred mark before tomorrow night. Twenty-one nominations were made yesterday, one of them being the E-M-F touring car of Miss Hazel Jewell, sister of Miss Isabella Jewell, of the Polo Players. Miss Jewell will drive the car and is confident of being among the prize winners.

The other entries made yesterday follow: H. G. Machen, Ford; G. H. Williams, Crawford; Clayton Craft, Marion; Charles H. Orme, Apperson; Daniel Levy, Washington; Mrs. J. J. Bartram, Columbia electric; R. C. Wilson, Cole; W. H. Kessler, Warren; Dr. J. J. Kaveney, Warren; A. Ries, Warren; E. Martin, Warren; Norman Bowles, Warren; W. E. Eassey, Warren; L. C. Barber, Warren; C. Klippmeyer, Warren; C. C. Schroth, Warren; C. H. Cross, Warren; M. C. Tribbey, Warren; W. T. Jones, Cadillac.

Captain Jose announced today the run would take place irrespective of weather conditions.

DISTRICT BOY SCOUTS TO MEET TOMORROW

Plans for Financing Work for Coming Year Will Be Discussed.

The annual meeting of the District council of Boy Scouts will be held at the Willard tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Plans of financing the work for the coming year will be discussed, the work of providing for fifty scouts at River View camp considered, and a general report on the work of the Boy Scouts during the last year presented.

The Knights of Columbus and the Police Department have joined in asking the great crowds expected here June 5 at the unveiling of the Columbus memorial.

There are now forty-four companies of Boy Scouts in the District, and the total enrollment is 1,000. As there are only thirty-eight scoutmasters, young men who want to break into the work of handling boys have plenty of opportunity.

Sparkling and snappy from the fountain—5c. At your home, carbonated in bottles.

Everybody knows Hires is good. It is made that way. From every good and pure source of Nature come the saps and flavors that make this great American drink.

Sarsaparilla, sassafras, hops, wintergreen, birch—and then some—every one good. More than just good to the taste. It's the most healthful of drinks—tones the blood and aids digestion. But not a trace of drugs.

Hires just won't disagree with you. But it will cool you off like a breeze after a cooling storm. Needless to say "rootbeer." Just say "Hires."

Sparkling and snappy from the fountain—5c. At your home, carbonated in bottles.

Follow the crowd. Save 25¢ on every grocery dollar.

Be one of the happy throng that buys the finest, freshest, most wholesome groceries and provisions at one of the 19 J. T. D. Pyles stores. Save 25 cents on every grocery dollar. Buying for 19 stores enables us to secure for you the best market affords, and the prices asked are so much lower than those of the credit stores that there is no comparison.

THE J. T. D. PYLES STORES

412 Fourth Street Southeast.
914 Eleventh Street Southeast.
12 Good Hope Road, Anacostia.
Four-and-a-half and G Sts. S. W.
Fourth and H Street Northeast.
Third St. and Maryland Ave. N. E.
11 Seventh Street Northeast.
916 F Street Northeast.
Fifteenth and G Sts. northeast.

Give your Order at any of the above stores, and the express man will deliver it, large or small, for 10c.

Heart to Heart Talks

BY THE EDITOR OF THE CAVALIER

IN so far as there are a large number of prospective readers who might be interested in some of the distinctive features of THE CAVALIER, I should like to point out a few that will, for a certainty, appeal to them. The new serial that starts in this week's number of THE CAVALIER, entitled unfolds in two of the most interesting parts of the world; the Malay Peninsula and old Kentucky. The hero is just a plain, everyday young fellow with the "wanderlust" in his soul and a longing for adventure in his heart. He is equally at home either on land or sea, and quite as ready to fight a battle to the death as to make a courtly salutation to a fair woman. He is game, too—as game as they make them. He is accustomed to high life, accepts low life stoically, laughs at wounds, and flirts with danger, while his attitude toward good fortune is merely complacent.

"THROUGH THE PORTAL OF DREAMS"

BY CHARLES NEVILLE BUCK

Mr. Charles Neville Buck, the author of "THROUGH THE PORTAL OF DREAMS," is well known for his stories written around the Cumberland Mountains. His characters are real people, vitalized by his intimate acquaintance with them.

"THROUGH THE PORTAL OF DREAMS" will run through four numbers of THE CAVALIER, and wind up where the meadow-grass is blue and good horses and fair women prevail. You can well afford to sit down in your quiet domicile and lose yourself in this story. You will be happier for it. Far better to pass the time in this manner than to come home late like the cabman whose wife hit him a clout over the forehead with a picture frame. The frame, brought to court as evidence, was found upon examination to contain that beautiful motto, "There's No Place Like Home."

SINCE the introduction of THE CAVALIER into the domestic life of our country, assault and battery has almost entirely ceased.

The late Josiah Flint, in his volume, "The Powers That Prey," made frequent reference to "the lid." In police parlance, when "the lid is on" all is peaceful and quiet. The powers that prey are under cover. The undesirable in society are quiescent. Law and order prevail.

When "the lid is off," it means that the caldron of the underworld is boiling over, emitting fumes that delight the nostrils of the criminal classes while asphyxiating decent society. In other words, the town is wide open, and the police have their hands full; the crooked politicians and the criminal police go hand in glove, and the highways and byways are like rivers wending their way in the shadows to the penitentiaries and reform-schools, flowing inevitably downward.

This condition exists, in a greater or less degree, in every big city.

If you would be interested in a story of what happens when the caldron is steaming, read

"THE LID"

BY JAMES FRENCH DORRANCE

which appears in the form of a novelette in this week's number of THE CAVALIER.

In the very first chapter "the lid" goes off with a bang, revealing the gambler, the faker, and the slick mischief-maker gleaming the harvests planted by the indiscreet weak, while over all the political birds of prey, the vultures who feed on frailty, hover falcon-like, waiting to fall upon the quarry.

It requires something more than a tempest in a teapot to blow a metropolitan "lid" off, but once in the air, it is a difficult thing to get back on again. This is because so many influences are at work to keep it off. Crooked gamblers, crooked policemen, crooked newspapers, crooked lawyers, to say nothing of a few crooked plain people, all contribute to the pastime of lifting the "lid."

Mr. Dorrance has written about all of these people with an intimate understanding. You will recognize the types, for their counterparts are everywhere. There is a reader of THE CAVALIER who has written me a letter, saying that he had some experience with them.

Read the Dorrance story and you will know all there is to know, all that should be known.

SNAPSHOTS OF SHORT STORIES

"WHITHER THOU GOEST," by E. Howell Neumann, was inspired by an incident that occurred at Ellis Island, where the immigrants who come to the United States from all over the world are obliged to land before they are brought into New York and are maintained in the United States. It is a splendid story of deep, human feeling—a story that will bring your heart.

If any of your ancestors came from the other side, you will probably be able to appreciate the story better than if you were a native-born. But regardless of your country, it will appeal to your intelligence.

"UNDER THE ROUGE," by Ethelbert Waldron, is quite a different type of story. The rouge was on a woman's cheek, placed there by her own hand, and her eyes were darkened skilfully and the lashes that lay upon her cheek were alluring. The hero felt that the man who loved her did not quite understand that all that beauty was not hers. And so she fled from him, whereupon, without delay, he pursued.

It is a fact that beauty is only skin-deep, but you will find, as we have found, that there is another kind of beauty under the skin—a beauty housed in the soul.

"POP," by Reineette Lovewell, is respectfully submitted to the readers of THE CAVALIER who have had a father, a paternal ancestor. No matter where he came from or what he looks like, if you really recognize him as a father, you ought to read this story. It makes no difference whether you are his son or his daughter, it will have the same effect upon you. People who have never had a father must not read this story.

"THE MAN THEY HANGED," by H. O. Sullivan, I hardly know what to make of this story. It is at once the most satisfactory and yet unsatisfactory story that has come to this office. It seems as though the author should have written something else. And yet, what else could he have been more interesting? I have not the slightest hesitation about asking you to read it. As to its literary quality, I am sure that you will not soon forget it.

When men write stories like "THE MAN THEY HANGED" and express the feelings and beliefs with such strength, and when men can die because they can see it is the right thing for them to do, the world is not entirely without thinkers and martyrs.

Opinions from CAVALIER readers continue to pour in about "THE WOMAN WHO PAID." My Rider Mechold's story with two endings, which we ran in the April 20 issue of THE CAVALIER. It is a pleasure to say that the experiment of printing both a happy and an unhappy ending, with the object of letting the reader decide for himself, was a remarkable success in every sense of the word.

The reading public was divided on a basis of forty-five and fifty-five percent, with a majority in favor of Ending Two, in which the woman in the story dies self-sacrificed to her high ideals, leaving her husband only the memory of her martyrdom. It lingers in his mind as a chastened and beautiful thing, and he is uplifted.

Ending One, that is to say, the happy ending, restores the wife to her husband, the evils of the past are forgotten, and tomorrow is as the sunrise, radiating hope and lighting the highway to a newer, better life.

Nevertheless, the majority preferred the tragedy, which was Mrs. Mechold's original conception as to how the story should conclude.

We discussed this tragic ending in editorial confidence, and the author was invited, for experimental purposes, to prepare a version ending happily. This she did with equal skill, as the readers of "THE WOMAN WHO PAID" are aware. Both endings were weighed carefully, with the result that a majority of intelligent readers were enabled to express a preference.

Heart to Heart Talks

BY THE EDITOR OF THE CAVALIER

IN so far as there are a large number of prospective readers who might be interested in some of the distinctive features of THE CAVALIER, I should like to point out a few that will, for a certainty, appeal to them. The new serial that starts in this week's number of THE CAVALIER, entitled unfolds in two of the most interesting parts of the world; the Malay Peninsula and old Kentucky. The hero is just a plain, everyday young fellow with the "wanderlust" in his soul and a longing for adventure in his heart. He is equally at home either on land or sea, and quite as ready to fight a battle to the death as to make a courtly salutation to a fair woman. He is game, too—as game as they make them. He is accustomed to high life, accepts low life stoically, laughs at wounds, and flirts with danger, while his attitude toward good fortune is merely complacent.

"THROUGH THE PORTAL OF DREAMS"

BY CHARLES NEVILLE BUCK

Mr. Charles Neville Buck, the author of "THROUGH THE PORTAL OF DREAMS," is well known for his stories written around the Cumberland Mountains. His characters are real people, vitalized by his intimate acquaintance with them.

"THROUGH THE PORTAL OF DREAMS" will run through four numbers of THE CAVALIER, and wind up where the meadow-grass is blue and good horses and fair women prevail. You can well afford to sit down in your quiet domicile and lose yourself in this story. You will be happier for it. Far better to pass the time in this manner than to come home late like the cabman whose wife hit him a clout over the forehead with a picture frame. The frame, brought to court as evidence, was found upon examination to contain that beautiful motto, "There's No Place Like Home."

SINCE the introduction of THE CAVALIER into the domestic life of our country, assault and battery has almost entirely ceased.

The late Josiah Flint, in his volume, "The Powers That Prey," made frequent reference to "the lid." In police parlance, when "the lid is on" all is peaceful and quiet. The powers that prey are under cover. The undesirable in society are quiescent. Law and order prevail.

When "the lid is off," it means that the caldron of the underworld is boiling over, emitting fumes that delight the nostrils of the criminal classes while asphyxiating decent society. In other words, the town is wide open, and the police have their hands full; the crooked politicians and the criminal police go hand in glove, and the highways and byways are like rivers wending their way in the shadows to the penitentiaries and reform-schools, flowing inevitably downward.

This condition exists, in a greater or less degree, in every big city.

If you would be interested in a story of what happens when the caldron is steaming, read

"THE LID"

BY JAMES FRENCH DORRANCE

which appears in the form of a novelette in this week's number of THE CAVALIER.

In the very first chapter "the lid" goes off with a bang, revealing the gambler, the faker, and the slick mischief-maker gleaming the harvests planted by the indiscreet weak, while over all the political birds of prey, the vultures who feed on frailty, hover falcon-like, waiting to fall upon the quarry.

It requires something more than a tempest in a teapot to blow a metropolitan "lid" off, but once in the air, it is a difficult thing to get back on again. This is because so many influences are at work to keep it off. Crooked gamblers, crooked policemen, crooked newspapers, crooked lawyers, to say nothing of a few crooked plain people, all contribute to the pastime of lifting the "lid."

Mr. Dorrance has written about all of these people with an intimate understanding. You will recognize the types, for their counterparts are everywhere. There is a reader of THE CAVALIER who has written me a letter, saying that he had some experience with them.

Read the Dorrance story and you will know all there is to know, all that should be known.

SNAPSHOTS OF SHORT STORIES

"WHITHER THOU GOEST," by E. Howell Neumann, was inspired by an incident that occurred at Ellis Island, where the immigrants who come to the United States from all over the world are obliged to land before they are brought into New York and are maintained in the United States. It is a splendid story of deep, human feeling—a story that will bring your heart.

If any of your ancestors came from the other side, you will probably be able to appreciate the story better than if you were a native-born. But regardless of your country, it will appeal to your intelligence.

"UNDER THE ROUGE," by Ethelbert Waldron, is quite a different type of story. The rouge was on a woman's cheek, placed there by her own hand, and her eyes were darkened skilfully and the lashes that lay upon her cheek were alluring. The hero felt that the man who loved her did not quite understand that all that beauty was not hers. And so she fled from him, whereupon, without delay, he pursued.

It is a fact that beauty is only skin-deep, but you will find, as we have found, that there is another kind of beauty under the skin—a beauty housed in the soul.

"POP," by Reineette Lovewell, is respectfully submitted to the readers of THE CAVALIER who have had a father, a paternal ancestor. No matter where he came from or what he looks like, if you really recognize him as a father, you ought to read this story. It makes no difference whether you are his son or his daughter, it will have the same effect upon you. People who have never had a father must not read this story.

"THE MAN THEY HANGED," by H. O. Sullivan, I hardly know what to make of this story. It is at once the most satisfactory and yet unsatisfactory story that has come to this office. It seems as though the author should have written something else. And yet, what else could he have been more interesting? I have not the slightest hesitation about asking you to read it. As to its literary quality, I am sure that you will not soon forget it.

When men write stories like "THE MAN THEY HANGED" and express the feelings and beliefs with such strength, and when men can die because they can see it is the right thing for them to do, the world is not entirely without thinkers and martyrs.

Opinions from CAVALIER readers continue to pour in about "THE WOMAN WHO PAID." My Rider Mechold's story with two endings, which we ran in the April 20 issue of THE CAVALIER. It is a pleasure to say that the experiment of printing both a happy and an unhappy ending, with the object of letting the reader decide for himself, was a remarkable success in every sense of the word.

The reading public was divided on a basis of forty-five and fifty-five percent, with a majority in favor of Ending Two, in which the woman in the story dies self-sacrificed to her high ideals, leaving her husband only the memory of her martyrdom. It lingers in his mind as a chastened and beautiful thing, and he is uplifted.

Ending One, that is to say, the happy ending, restores the wife to her husband, the evils of the past are forgotten, and tomorrow is as the sunrise, radiating hope and lighting the highway to a newer, better life.

Nevertheless, the majority preferred the tragedy, which was Mrs. Mechold's original conception as to how the story should conclude.

We discussed this tragic ending in editorial confidence, and the author was invited, for experimental purposes, to prepare a version ending happily. This she did with equal skill, as the readers of "THE WOMAN WHO PAID" are aware. Both endings were weighed carefully, with the result that a majority of intelligent readers were enabled to express a preference.

The Cavalier for Saturday, May 25

is NOW on Sale at Your Dealer's News-stand

10 Cents a Copy

Or will be Sent by the Publisher on Receipt of Price

THE FRANK A. MUNSEY COMPANY, 175 Fifth Avenue, New York